

SECTION 811: SUPPORTIVE HOUSING FOR PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES PROGRAM

By Ayana Gonzalez, Senior Consultant, Technical Assistance Collaborative

Administering Agency: HUD's Office of Asset Management and Portfolio Oversight

Year Started: 1992 (prior to 1992, Section 811 was part of the Section 202 program)

Number of Persons/Households Served: The 811 Capital Advance program currently serves an estimated 31,249 households in 2,770 properties. Existing funding for the 811 Project Rental Assistance (PRA) program is expected to produce over 12,000 units.

Population Targeted: Persons ages 18–61 who are extremely or very low-income and have significant and long-term disabilities.

Funding: The president's FY25 budget requests $256.7 million for Housing for Persons with Disabilities, which is $103.3 million less than the 2024 Annualized CR level.

The federal Section 811 Supportive Housing for Persons with Disabilities program assists the lowest-income people with significant and long-term disabilities in living independently in the community by providing affordable housing linked with voluntary services and supports. Congress passed significant reforms to the Section 811 program in 2010 including the creation of the PRA program. The PRA program is intended to identify, stimulate, and support innovative state-level partnerships and strategies to substantially increase access to affordable housing units, both new and existing, with access to appropriate services for persons with disabilities.

History

Historically, the Section 811 program created new supportive housing units primarily through the development of group homes and independent living projects under regulations and guidelines developed in the early 1990s. Since that time, housing and services policies have evolved to emphasize community-based housing and consumer choice. For many years, the Section 811 program did not keep pace with these improvements in disability policy. Demand for the program steadily declined, while the cost per unit of Section 811's capital-intensive model increased. In 2007, with fewer than 1,000 new units of Section 811 housing produced annually, national disability advocates began a successful three-year legislative campaign to reform and reinvigorate this important program. The "Frank Melville Supportive Housing Investment Act of 2010," the Section 811 reform legislation signed into law in early 2011, honors the memory of Frank Melville, who was the first chair of the Melville Charitable Trust and a national leader in the supportive housing movement.

Program Summary

The Section 811 program includes several components, two of which currently receive HUD funding: Capital Advance/Project Rental Assistance Contract (PRAC), which includes a newer multifamily integrated housing option, and the PRA program.

Section 811 Capital Advance/PRAC: Only 501(c)(3) nonprofits are eligible to apply for the Section 811 Capital Advance/PRAC program. HUD provides funding for capital costs and for project rental assistance contracts that cover annual operating costs. HUD estimates that there are currently 31,600 Section 811 Capital Advance/PRAC units. In 2019, after issuing the first Section 811 Supportive Housing for Persons with Disabilities (Capital Advance/PRAC) Notice of Funding Availability (NOFA) since 2010, HUD announced $13.4 million in awards to 8 nonprofit recipients. In October 2023, HUD issued a new Notice of Funding Opportunity (NOFO) for the Section 811 (Capital Advance/PRAC) program with funds from HUD FY22 and HUD FY23 appropriations. At the time of this publication, no awards have been announced.

Section 811 Project Rental Assistance: Only state housing agencies are eligible to apply for the PRA program. The PRA program provides funds for project-based rental assistance where the capital is provided through other local, state, and/or federal programs; PRA funds cannot be used for capital. Since May 2012, HUD has published four Section 811 PRA NOFA/NOFOs. These Notices resulted in Cooperative Agreements for more than $43 million with 35 states. Approximately 12,000 units are expected to be produced through these programs. States have demonstrated a high degree of interest in the PRA program; 43 states plus the District of Columbia have submitted applications in response to the notices of funding.

Funding

In August 2024, HUD announced nearly $140 million in 811 PRA grants to 18 state housing agencies.

Forecast for 2026

The president's FY26 budget requests $0 for Housing for Persons with Disabilities. However, the House and Senate budgets each include $262 million for Housing for Persons with Disabilities, including PRAC, PRA and Project Assistance Contract (PAC) renewals, amendments as well as administrative and other related expenses. This amount represents an increase from the FY25 allocation of $256 million.

In the "FY22 Appropriations Act," Congress authorized the budget-neutral conversion of Section 811 PRAC properties under the Rental Assistance Demonstration (RAD) program (see RAD program elsewhere in this guide) in order to support the preservation of existing Section 811 PRAC projects. HUD has said that it will take some time to develop the policies governing these RAD conversions and to publish implementation guidance; a final Implementation Notice has not been issued yet.

Tips for Local Success

Advocates in states that have not yet received Section 811 PRA funds should work with state officials to support the implementation of this innovative model, educating state leaders, local agencies, and organizations on the new PRA option to encourage a successful application for funds in future rounds. At the state level, activities should focus on housing, Medicaid, and health and human service agencies. Nonprofit and for-profit developers that frequently use federal Low-Income Housing Tax Credit (LIHTC) and HOME Investment Partnerships program funds should also be made aware of this resource.

The 811 PRA website \(https://www.hudexchange.info/programs/811-pra/success-stories/\) provides videos and stories from tenants in Louisiana, Maryland, Washington State, and Massachusetts that can be used to educate stakeholders, including developers and property managers, about the program.

What to Say to Legislators

Advocates are encouraged to contact their members of Congress with the message that people with disabilities continue to be the poorest people in the nation. The Technical Assistance Collaborative publication Priced Out \(https://www.tacinc.org/resources/priced-out/\) describes how over four million non-elderly adults with significant and long-term disabilities have Supplemental Security Income levels equal to only 20% of area median income (AMI) and cannot afford housing in the community without federal housing assistance.

Affordable housing advocates are encouraged to support a federal budget that fully funds Section 811 renewals and provides increased funds to expand the supply of integrated, affordable housing with the availability of supportive services for very low- and extremely low-income adults with disabilities.
