AUGUST RECESS 2022
TOOLKIT

NATIONAL LOW INCOME HOUSING COALITION

DEAR ADVOCATES,

More than ever, bold policies are needed to ensure stable, affordable homes for people with the lowest incomes and those who are most marginalized.

Even before the pandemic, millions of extremely low-income households were struggling to keep roofs over their heads, always one financial shock away from falling behind on rent and being threatened with eviction and, in the worst cases, homelessness. On any night, half a million people were unhoused.

Then came COVID-19, which put as many as 12 million households at risk of losing their homes without immediate governmental action. Thanks to advocates like you and our congressional champions, federal, state, and local governments heeded our warnings and responded with unprecedented resources and protections to keep tenants housed. However, while the emergency rental assistance and eviction moratoriums passed during the pandemic were essential protections, they offered only a temporary patch for the gaping holes in our social safety net. Now, as pandemic-era renter protections expire and resources are depleted, renters are confronted with soaring inflation, skyrocketing rents, increased evictions, and in many communities, more homelessness.

At the same time, dangerous anti-homelessness rhetoric is gaining traction in some states and communities, and some misguided policymakers are turning away from solutions that work and instead are pushing for harmful measures to criminalize homelessness, impose punitive requirements, and even prevent the development of affordable housing. These harmful approaches are counterproductive and dehumanizing, and they will make it even harder for people to exit homelessness.

Homelessness and housing poverty are crises that demand urgent action by local, state, and federal policymakers.

The National Low Income Housing Coalition invites advocates across the nation to join our HoUSed campaign to advance the anti-racist policies and the large-scale, sustained investments and reforms that move our nation towards universal, stable, and affordable homes for everyone. Together, we will use the congressional August Recess to urge Congress to advance the HoUSed campaign agenda to ensure rental assistance is universally available, expand and preserve the supply of homes affordable and available to the lowest-income renters, create permanent resources to help renters in crisis, and strengthen and enforce renter protections.

This toolkit includes the key resources you will need to participate. We hope you will join us to build the congressional support needed to finally end homelessness and housing poverty once and for all.

Sincerely,

Diane Yentel
President and CEO

TAKING ACTION DURING AUGUST RECESS!

Advocates can use the time available during the recess to engage senators and representatives:

Schedule in-district meetings with your members of Congress. Meeting with your senators and representatives while they are in their home communities is highly effective and can help you build your relationships with these policymakers. Bring in key stakeholders who share your priorities and use the meeting to educate members of Congress and their staffs about the housing crisis in your community and the federal policy solutions that are needed. Use NLIHC's meeting request template and tips for planning an in-district meeting.

Invite members of Congress to tour an affordable housing development serving households with the greatest needs, or a Housing First program. One of the most effective strategies to turn members of Congress into housing champions is to help them see the positive impact of housing investments first-hand. Tours can also be a big draw for senators and representatives who are always looking for opportunities to meet constituents. Be sure to provide ample time for members of Congress to ask questions and learn about the housing needs of people with the lowest incomes in your community. Read more about how to plan an effective site visit or tour.

Amplify on social media key messages about America's housing and homelessness crisis and long-term solutions. You can help shape the narrative around housing and homelessness and join the national conversation about the need for long-term solutions. When you meet with your members of Congress or invite them on a tour, be sure to thank them on social media for their commitment to housing solutions. Use NLIHC's sample social media messages.

Share stories of those directly impacted by homelessness and housing instability. Storytelling can add emotional weight to your congressional meetings and help form connections with lawmakers by pointing out shared values. It can also help lawmakers see how their policy decisions impact real people. Learn more about how to tell compelling stories.

ABOUT NLIHC'S HOUSED CAMPAIGN

NLIHC launched the HoUSed campaign to advance anti-racist policies and achieve the large-scale, sustained investments and reforms necessary to ensure that renters with the lowest incomes have affordable places to call home. More than ever, bold policies are needed to ensure that people with the lowest incomes and the most marginalized people have stable, affordable homes.

To achieve this vision, we must:

1. Bridge the gap between incomes and housing costs by expanding rental assistance to every eligible household. Today, only one in four households eligible for rental assistance receives it. Learn more about how we can ensure rental assistance is universally available.
2. Expand and preserve the supply of rental homes affordable and accessible to people with the lowest incomes. There is no state or congressional district in America with enough supply of affordable housing for families with the lowest incomes. Learn more about ways to build and preserve affordable homes.
3. Provide emergency rental assistance to households in crisis by creating a national housing stabilization fund. Millions of households are one financial shock away from economic hardship that could quickly spiral out of control. Learn more about how we can stabilize households during a crisis.
4. Strengthen and enforce renter protections. The power imbalance between renters and landlords puts renters at risk of housing instability and homelessness. Learn more about how we can build power for renters.

Congress must use every opportunity to advance bold housing solutions that move our nation towards universal, stable, and affordable homes for everyone!

TOP CAMPAIGN PRIORITIES

IMMEDIATE OPPORTUNITIES

Fiscal Year 2023 Appropriations

Urge your senators and representatives to provide HUD and USDA affordable housing programs with the highest possible funding in FY23, including:

1. An expansion of housing vouchers to an additional 200,000 households.
2. Significant funding to preserve and operate public housing ($5.125 billion for the Public Housing Capital Fund, and $5.06 billion for the Public Housing Operating Fund).
3. $3.6 billion for HUD's Homeless Assistance Grants program to address the needs of people experiencing homelessness.
4. $100 million for legal assistance to prevent evictions.
5. $300 million for the competitive tribal housing program, targeted to tribes with the greatest needs.

See NLIHC's updated budget chart and full analysis here, and sign a national letter in support of the highest level of funding possible.

IMMEDIATE THREATS

Anti-Homelessness Legislation and Rhetoric

Educate your senators and representatives about the importance of Housing First and other long-term solutions to homelessness. Across the nation, there is a growing backlash against people experiencing homelessness and against real solutions to this crisis. Representative Barr (R-KY) has introduced harmful legislation, for example, to undermine HUD's ability to prioritize evidence-based solutions, including Housing First. Dangerous rhetoric and measures – including those seeking to criminalize homelessness, impose punitive requirements, and even prevent the development of affordable housing – are gaining traction at the state and local levels. It is critical that advocates and our allies in Congress are unified in pushing back against these counterproductive and dehumanizing efforts.

CRITICAL LONG-TERM SOLUTIONS

1. Bridge the Gap Between Incomes and Rents

Family Stability and Opportunity Vouchers Act (S.1991) – Ask your senators to co-sponsor this bill from Senators Van Hollen (D-MD) and Young (R-IN), which would provide 500,000 new housing vouchers and counseling services to help families with children move to areas of opportunity. The bill is also supported by the Opportunity Starts at Home campaign. To learn more, see the factsheet on the Family Stability and Opportunity Vouchers Act.

Ending Homelessness Act (H.R.4496) – Ask your representatives to co-sponsor this bill from Chairwoman Waters (D-CA) and Representatives Cleaver (D-MO) and Torres (D-NY). The bill establishes a universal housing voucher program to ensure that every eligible household can receive rental assistance, bans housing discrimination on the basis of a household’s “source of income,” and invests more than $10 billion to build more homes affordable to households with the greatest needs through the national Housing Trust Fund and other programs. To learn more, see the factsheet on the Ending Homelessness Act.

2. Expand and Preserve the Supply of Rental Homes Affordable and Accessible to People with the Lowest Incomes

American Housing and Economic Mobility Act (S.1368/H.R.2768) – Ask your members of Congress to co-sponsor this bill from Senators Warren (D-MA), Gillibrand (D-NY), Markey (D-MA), Sanders (I-VT), Hirono (D-HI), and Merkley (D-OR), and Representatives Cleaver (D-MO), Lee (D-CA), Moore (D-WI), Khanna (D-CA), Norton (D-DC), Garcia (D-IL), Cohen (D-TN), Schakowsky (D-IL), Pressley (D-MA), and Bonamici (D-OR). The bill addresses the underlying cause of the affordable housing crisis – the severe shortage of affordable homes for people with the lowest incomes – through a robust investment of $45 billion annually in the national Housing Trust Fund, among other investments. To learn more, see NLIHC’s factsheet on the American Housing and Economic Mobility Act and the factsheet on the Housing Trust Fund.

3. Stabilize Families to Prevent Evictions

Eviction Crisis Act/Stable Families Act (S.2182/H.R.8327) – Ask your members of Congress to co-sponsor this bill from Senators Bennet (D-CO), Portman (R-OH), Brown (D-OH), and Young (R-IN), and Representative Torres (D-NY). The bill establishes a permanent Emergency Rental Assistance program, funded at $3 billion annually, to help families facing a financial shock avoid eviction. The bill is supported by the Opportunity Starts at Home campaign. To learn more, see NLIHC’s Opportunity Starts at Home campaign’s factsheet on the Eviction Crisis Act, and sign the national support letter.

4. Strengthen and Enforce Renter Protections

Fair Housing Improvement Act (S.4485/H.R.8213) – Ask your senators and representatives to support this bill from Senator Kaine (D-VA) and Representative Peters (D-CA). The bill expands the Fair Housing Act to prohibit housing discrimination based on “source of income” and military and veteran status. These protections will make it easier for low-income households, veterans, and servicemembers to access affordable housing in communities of their choice. For more information, see NLIHC’s factsheet on the Fair Housing Improvement Act.

TALKING POINTS

What are the major causes of America's housing and homelessness crisis?

- The underlying cause of America's housing and homelessness crisis is the severe shortage of homes affordable to people with the lowest incomes and a widening gap between incomes and housing costs. Other factors that contribute to homelessness include chronic health conditions and domestic violence that result in higher rates of poverty, discrimination, incarceration, and lack of access to healthcare, as well as other barriers to stable housing.
- There is a national shortage of 7 million homes that are affordable to people with the lowest incomes. There are just 37 affordable and available rental homes for every 100 extremely low-income renter households. Every state and congressional district is impacted.
- Housing costs are out of reach for too many of the lowest-income renters. A full-time worker must earn at least $20.40 per hour to rent a modest one-bedroom home, or $24.90 per hour to rent a modest two-bedroom home. These rents are far higher than what the lowest-income and most marginalized renters – including seniors, people with disabilities, and working families – can spend on housing.
- Because of the housing crisis, more than half a million people in America experience homelessness on any given night, and millions more are at risk.
- Three in four (71%) of America's lowest-income households pay at least half of their limited incomes on rent, leaving few resources to put groceries on the table, cover medical costs, or meet their other basic needs. One emergency or unexpected expense could send these households into homelessness.
- Despite the clear need, Congress only provides housing assistance to one in four eligible households, leaving the rest to fend for themselves. Without this assistance, far too many people become homeless.
- Because of long-standing historical and systemic racism in housing and other sectors, Black and Indigenous people experience homelessness at far higher rates than white individuals. Black individuals represent 13 percent of the general population, but they account for 40 percent of people experiencing homelessness and more than 50 percent of homeless families with children. Native Hawaiians, Pacific Islanders, and American Indians/Alaska Natives experience the highest rates of homelessness.

Why is homelessness increasing in many communities?

- America's severe rental housing affordability crisis pushes more and more people into homelessness each year. Until we address the underlying causes of homelessness, this crisis will not end. Because housing costs are out of reach for the lowest-income households, any financial shock can push households out of their homes and into homelessness.

- Because of the growing housing crisis, more people are entering homelessness each year than the number of people exiting homelessness and being rehoused. Between 2017 and 2020, an average of 908,530 people became homeless each year, while an average of 900,895 people exited homelessness each year. Over five years, the gap between those entering and exiting homelessness equaled 38,175 people.
- In Los Angeles County, for example, 207 individuals experiencing homelessness are rehoused each day! However, because of the severe housing crisis, another 227 people become homeless daily.

What is the Housing First model for ending homelessness?

- Housing First is the most effective approach for ending homelessness. Under the Housing First model, stable, affordable, and accessible housing is provided to people experiencing homelessness quickly and without prerequisites, and voluntary supportive services, such as substance use and mental health counseling, and employment training, among others, are offered to help improve housing stability and well-being. It is a flexible model that can be adapted to address the unique needs in local communities and tailored to the challenges facing individuals.
- Housing First is a bipartisan, evidence-based practice backed by multiple, national studies. The Housing First approach has garnered strong bipartisan support for decades. It has been embraced by the George W. Bush, Obama, and Biden administrations, as well as departments and agencies including HUD, VA, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), and the U.S. Interagency Council on Homelessness (USICH).
- Housing First cut veteran homelessness in half in recent years. In 2021, three states and 82 communities announced they had achieved net zero veteran homelessness using the Housing First model.

Why are some policymakers turning to misguided and harmful measures to address homelessness?

- Homelessness and housing poverty are crises across the country – crises that stem from decades of underinvestment in affordable housing and healthcare and that demand urgent action.
- Instead of addressing the underlying causes of homelessness, some policymakers are turning away from solutions that work and instead are pushing for harmful measures to criminalize homelessness, impose punitive requirements, and even prevent the development of affordable housing. These approaches are counterproductive and dehumanizing, and they will make it even harder for people to exit homelessness.
- Criminalizing homelessness is counterproductive, expensive, and dehumanizing. Very few of the people experiencing homelessness are unsheltered by choice. Arrests, fines, jail time, and criminal records make it more difficult for individuals experiencing homelessness to access the affordable housing, services, and employment necessary to exit homelessness, and criminalizing homelessness is more expensive for communities.
- Punitive requirements, including time limits, work requirements, forced treatment, and mandatory sobriety, ignore the primary driver of homelessness: the severe shortage of housing affordable to the lowest-income and most marginalized people. Setting such high barriers will result in many people being pushed back into homelessness without a path to housing. This approach is costly and ineffective.

- Redirecting investments away from long-term solutions, like permanent supportive housing, to fund short-term crisis responses does not end homelessness; it only moves unhoused people out of the public eye.

What are the long-term solutions needed to end America's homelessness and housing crisis?

- To end homelessness throughout the country, our nation must significantly expand investments to make homes affordable and accessible for people with the lowest incomes. This must start with ensuring rental assistance is universally available to everyone in need, preserving and expanding the supply of homes affordable to people with the lowest incomes, preventing households from evictions and homelessness, and strengthening renter protections. These solutions must be paired with anti-racist reforms to break down barriers that prevent access to critical resources and that deepen racial disparities.
- We must also increase resources for services – such as physical and behavioral health care, harm reduction interventions, and mental and substance use disorder treatment – to help people manage serious, chronic challenges if and when they occur.

HELPFUL RESOURCES

Data Resources for Meetings

- Housing Needs by State: State profiles include the shortage of rental homes affordable and available in the state for the lowest-income households, the number of affordable and available homes per 100 renter households at different income levels in the state, housing cost burdens by income group, and the demographic make-up of extremely low-income renter households. This is a valuable collection of various data sets, and the resource includes a compelling factsheet to present to senators and their staffs. The Congressional Housing District profiles for your state can be found under the resources tab on each state profile. These data sheets are especially helpful for use in meetings with representatives who might not believe statewide data applies to the people in their districts.
- NLIHC Housing First Page: This page includes general introductory information about Housing First as a strategy to end homelessness, including:
 - Why Housing First is a critical strategy for ending homelessness
 - Research on the effectiveness of Housing First
 - How Housing First cut veteran homelessness in half
 - How Housing First supports recovery from substance use disorders
 - Key facts about Housing First
- State Housing Preservation Profiles: The Preservation Profiles use data from the National Housing Preservation Database to provide an overview of the affordable housing inventory at the state level. Each profile features a graph depicting the number of affordable homes with subsidies set to expire in the near future. The data sheet makes the argument for furthering investments before many developments convert to market rents.
- The Gap 2022 State Profiles: The data available here show the gap between the number of renter households and the number of rental units that are affordable and available to them. The resource also breaks down the number of households that are cost-burdened by income group. Much of the data is also available on the State Housing Profiles.
