CONGRESSIONAL PROGRESSIVE CAUCUS

The Edward W. Brooke Housing Leadership Award is named for the late senator from Massachusetts who championed low-income housing as a U.S. senator and as chair of the NLICH Board of Directors after he left the Senate. Senator Brooke worked tirelessly to ensure low-income people in America had quality, accessible, affordable homes. The Brooke award goes to an exemplary housing leader with a record of fighting for affordable housing on the national level. The National Low Income Housing Coalition is pleased to present the Congressional Progressive Caucus with the 2022 Brooke Award for the Caucus’s leadership in protecting low-income renters during the pandemic and its steadfast efforts to include historic affordable housing investments in the “Build Back Better Act.”

Founded in 1991 and currently chaired by Representative Pramila Jayapal (D-WA), the Congressional Progressive Caucus advocates for progressive policies that fight inequity, advance racial and social justice, and prioritize the needs of people with low incomes. The Caucus is the leading voice on Capitol Hill calling for bold policies to address the urgent crises facing the U.S., including the national shortage of affordable, accessible housing for the lowest-income people.

The Congressional Progressive Caucus led efforts to support the national eviction moratorium and to secure $46 billion for emergency rental assistance to ensure the housing stability of millions of at-risk, low-income renters during the pandemic. When a framework for the “Build Back Better Act” began taking shape in April 2021, the Congressional Progressive Caucus made historic investments in affordable, accessible housing one of its key priorities for the package, including a major expansion of housing vouchers, funding to address the capital repair backlog in public housing, and billions of dollars to construct, preserve, and operate affordable, accessible housing for people with the lowest incomes through the national Housing Trust Fund.

Throughout the 2021 negotiations, the Caucus worked tirelessly to advance these priorities in the final package and ended up securing an historic $150 billion in federal investments in housing in the House-passed bill. The bill included $65 billion for public housing repairs to benefit its 2.5 million residents, $25 billion to expand housing vouchers to an additional 300,000 households, and $15 billion to build and preserve 150,000 affordable homes for those most in need. It is thanks in large part to the Caucus’s vision for what the Build Back Better Act could be – and what it could deliver to the American people – that the bill with these historic housing investments was passed in the House in 2021.

For the Caucus members’ bold vision and steadfast determination on Build Back Better; for their unwavering support for the national eviction moratorium and the safety of renters during the pandemic; and for their dedication to centering the needs of low-income and marginalized communities in their work, NLICH is honored to present the 2022 Edward W. Brooke Housing Leadership Award to the Congressional Progressive Caucus.

For many years, I’ve been proud to work with my colleagues in the Congressional Progressive Caucus to build a more just country for working families in my district and in similar communities across America. Everyone deserves a safe and affordable place to live, and that’s why as a senior member of the House Financial Services Committee, I was grateful to the CPC for their steadfast commitment to secure robust funding to expand affordable housing across America in the Build Back Better Act. I know in my heart that we will not give up the fight.

U.S. CONGRESSWOMAN NYDIA VELÁZQUEZ, NEW YORK

I’ve been proud to fight alongside the Congressional Progressive Caucus at advancing critical affordable housing measures, one of the most serious challenges facing New York City and our nation. The COVID-19 pandemic has made it clearer than ever that housing is a human right and no one should ever have to decide between paying rent and putting food on the table for their families.

U.S. CONGRESSWOMAN CAROLYN B. MALONEY, NEW YORK

As communities grapple with the COVID-19 virus and spiraling housing costs, I’m proud to fight to keep people in their homes and expand affordable housing opportunities as a member of the Congressional Progressive Caucus. The CPC is not afraid to stand firm in defense of tenants and all working families, and we can thank the strength of our caucus for the tenant protections, renters’ assistance, and funding for affordable housing Congress has passed so far.

U.S. CONGRESSMAN JESÚS G. “CHUY” GARCÍA, ILLINOIS

Growing up, I didn’t have much, but one thing I always had was a roof over my head. Unfortunately, too many people can’t say the same, and they are looking to us for help. My Congressional Progressive Caucus colleagues and I know how important it is to make quality, desirable, affordable housing available for everyone, no matter your ZIP Code, no matter your bank account. I am proud of the work the CPC has done to advance the Build Back Better Act through the House, and we won’t stop fighting to make transformational investments in housing.

U.S. CONGRESSWOMAN NIKEMA WILLIAMS, GEORGIA

Congratulations to the Congressional Progressive Caucus for this well-deserved recognition! Progressive values and effective organizing prevented many thousands of people from losing their homes during a global pandemic. I’m grateful for the leadership of the Caucus and its chair Rep. Pramila Jayapal. I couldn’t be more proud to have her representing Seattle!

RACHAEL MYERS, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, WASHINGTON LOW INCOME HOUSING ALLIANCE
With funding from the Melville Charitable Trust, Ann partnered with the D.C.-based Consortium for Citizens of localities to expand affordable and permanent supportive housing for extremely low-income households. They choose. During her more than two decades at TAC, Ann assisted approximately 20 states and hundreds of localities in developing and evaluating their rental assistance and then assisted secretary of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Communities and Development in the late 80s and early 90s, Ann oversaw approximately 50,000 state-wide federal and state-funded rental subsidies; developed and managed a five-year state-wide cross-sector initiative providing over 15,000 families without homes permanent affordable housing through state- and federally funded rental assistance programs; and developed and implemented ground-breaking multi-sector policies and five new state rental assistance-funded permanent supportive housing initiatives targeting 2,000 marginalized individuals and families, including people with mental illness, people recovering from substance abuse, people with HIV/AIDS, and victims of domestic violence. With her husband Steve Day and colleague Martin D. Cohen, Ann co-founded in 1993 – with a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation – and then led the Technical Assistance Collaborative (TAC), a non-profit dedicated to helping our nation’s human services, health care, homelessness, and affordable housing systems implement policies and practices that empower people to live healthy, independent lives in the communities they choose. During her more than two decades at TAC, Ann assisted approximately 20 states and hundreds of localities to expand affordable and permanent supportive housing for extremely low-income households. With funding from the Melville Charitable Trust, Ann partnered with the D.C.-based Consortium for Citizens with Disabilities (CCD) and the National Alliance on Mental Illness. The Technical Assistance Collaborative, which she co-founded, has aided hundreds of states and localities in developing and evaluating their responses to homelessness and housing for people with mental illness. On a personal note, Ann is fun to hang out with, her door is always open, and she is a good friend to the many members of the Ann O’Hara fan club. Congratulations, Ann. I raise a glass of clear liquid to my dear friend.

Ann O’Hara embodies the spirit of Cushing Dolbeare, and she has made an immeasurable contribution to both policy and practice on housing for people with disabilities. She has encyclopedic knowledge of several areas of housing policy, including vouchers, Section 811, homeless assistance, and fair housing. She is a wise advisor to many organizations that work on these issues, including the National Low Income Housing Coalition and the National Alliance on Mental Illness. The Technical Assistance Collaborative, which she co-founded, has aided hundreds of states and localities in developing and evaluating their responses to homelessness and housing for people with mental illness. On a personal note, Ann is fun to hang out with, her door is always open, and she is a good friend to the many members of the Ann O’Hara fan club. Congratulations, Ann. I raise a glass of clear liquid to my dear friend.

I’ve known Ann for nearly 40 years, and even before that I was aware of her stellar reputation. When Ann joined the Commonwealth’s Executive Office of Communities and Development, she became a close colleague and a dear personal friend. Ann is a tireless advocate for affordable housing and for the needs of people with disabilities, and she has a gift for sharing her deep knowledge and insight with the people and agencies that serve them. In my opinion, Ann is a true housing hero!

To a leader, colleague, mentor, and valued friend, congratulations on receiving the Dolbeare Lifetime Service Award. Over the arc of your life, you [Ann] have generously shared your intelligence and wisdom, your boundless commitment to housing justice, your passion for disability rights, your persistence in challenging policy makers to strive for housing equity, and your compassion for extremely low-income families, people with disabilities, and homeless households. Thank you for a lifetime of service and enduring contributions. We are all very grateful.

Congratulations, Ann, on this well-deserved recognition! For decades, you have been a fierce advocate for affordable housing and integrated community living for people with disabilities. Your passion and leadership have shaped federal and state housing and services policy, resulting in tens of thousands of people exiting segregated institutions and chronic homelessness. It is an honor to have worked for you, and for TAC to carry on your legacy.

As a devoted advocate for all low-income people, especially for those with disabilities, in need of housing, Ann O’Hara is the perfect choice for the 2022 Cushing Dolbeare Lifetime Service Award. She has been a tenacious advocate but always operated with the utmost integrity, authenticity, and graciousness. Ann always took the time, with patience and kindness, to mentor those of us who needed extra help.

Kevin Martone, Executive Director, Technical Assistance Collaborative

Sheila Crowley, Retired NLIHC President and CEO | Chair Board of Directors, Technical Assistance Collaborative

Bill Faith, Executive Director, Coalition on Homelessness and Housing on Ohio

Caroline Collins, Vice President, Creative Housing Collaborative

Henry Korman, General Counsel, 2Life Communities
The Sheila Crowley Housing Justice Award, named for former National Low Income Housing Coalition President and CEO Sheila Crowley, who led the Coalition for more than 17 years, goes to an individual or organization that has elevated the conversation around affordable housing for those most in need. NLIHC honors Congressman Ritchie Torres with the 2022 Sheila Crowley Housing Justice Award.

Born, raised, and still residing in the South Bronx, Congressman Torres grew up in public housing. At just 25 years old, he was elected to serve as a City Council member in 2013, making him New York City’s youngest elected official and the first openly LGBTQ person elected to office in the Bronx. As a Council member, Congressman Torres worked tirelessly to improve, protect, and expand New York’s affordable housing stock, including by holding the first ever hearing on public housing, which led to a $3 billion investment in the New York City Housing Authority.

In November 2020, Congressman Torres was elected to represent his community – New York’s 15th District – in the U.S. House of Representatives, becoming the first openly gay Afro-Latino man elected to Congress. Representative Torres has already become a leader in Congress in the fight for affordable, accessible housing for people with the lowest incomes.

Congressman Torres’s voice was pivotal in ensuring historical affordable housing investments remained in the House of Representative’s “Build Back Better Act”. Not only did he lead “Dear Colleague” letters that galvanized the support of half of the Democratic caucus, but when housing investments were at risk of deep cuts or elimination from the bill, Congressman Torres met with President Biden directly to make the case for these vital investments, and he appeared frequently on national news programs, always advocating for bold housing investments for those most in need. Thanks to his unwavering leadership and awareness raising, the Build Back Better Act passed in the House of Representatives included an historic $150 billion in affordable housing and community development investments, with the largest share of those funds going to programs for people with the lowest incomes.

For his commitment to advancing housing justice and racial equity, his tireless championing of the housing needs of people with the lowest incomes, and his critical role in achieving the historic affordable housing investments in the Build Back Better Act passed in the House, NLIHC is honored to present the 2022 Sheila Crowley Housing Justice Award to Congressman Ritchie Torres.

Congressman Ritchie Torres has been an incredible advocate for New York’s most vulnerable residents since his days representing the Bronx in the City Council – a passion he has brought with him to Washington. Rep. Torres fights for policies that will make a dent in our housing crisis and improve conditions in public housing. We cherish his partnership and are proud to work with him to make New York City more affordable and more equitable. We know he will not rest until everyone has a safe, affordable place to call home. We congratulate him on this well-deserved honor and look forward to many more to come.

RACHEL FEE, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, NEW YORK HOUSING CONFERENCE

The Supportive Housing Network of New York is delighted that Representative Torres is being honored by NLIHC. Rep. Torres is our staunchest champion in the fight for significantly more housing resources to address our growing homelessness and affordable housing crises. A life-long housing advocate, he has worked tirelessly for a sizable investment in affordable, supportive, and public housing that will make all the difference for housing insecure New Yorkers. We can think of no one more richly deserving of this accolade.

LAURA MASCUCHE, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, SUPPORTIVE HOUSING NETWORK OF NY

It is a true honor for me to congratulate Congressman Torres for receiving this year’s Sheila Crowley Housing Justice Award. Throughout his political career and especially over the past year, no one has elevated the conversation about affordable housing for those most in need more forcefully or successfully than Congressman Torres. I am so proud that Congressman Torres is being recognized for his tireless advocacy to advance affordable housing for low-income renters in New York City and across the country.

Creating Meaningful Spaces
A space of one’s own is invaluable, but when rent is just out of reach, programs such as the Federal Home Loan Bank of Dallas (FHLB Dallas) Affordable Housing
Program (AHP) General Fund can make a real difference.

Since 1990, the AHP General Fund has provided $287 million in funding for rental communities,
owner-occupied and transitional housing in Arkansas,
Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico and Texas, helping FHLB Dallas members to create spaces in which their communities can thrive.

Offered by FHLB Dallas, through member institutions,
AHP General Fund applications are now open.
Submit your application by May 12 and help create a meaningful space in your community.
