FAMILY STABILITY AND OPPORTUNITY VOUCHERS ACT

The “Family Stability and Opportunity Vouchers Act” (S.1257, H.R.3776) introduced by Senators Chris Van Hollen (D-MD) and Todd Young (R-IN) and Representatives Joe Neguse (D-CO) and Brian Fitzpatrick (R-PA), creates 250,000 new housing vouchers specifically targeted to low-income families with young children and provides mobility-related services, including mobility counseling, to help families move to communities of their choice, including neighborhoods with high-performing schools and/or high-quality childcare and early education programs.

NLIHC and the Opportunity Starts at Home urge Congress to enact Family Stability and Opportunity Vouchers Act.

Background

Access to safe, affordable housing is linked to nearly every measure of having a quality life, including better educational and health outcomes, housing stability, racial equity, and economic mobility. A landmark study by Harvard economist Raj Chetty demonstrates the enormous positive impact that affordable housing can have on upward economic mobility for children in low-income families. The nation’s lowest-income renters, however, have long faced a severe shortage of affordable housing, and the problem has only worsened in recent years.

Due to decades of chronic disinvestment by Congress, only 1 in 4 households who qualify for housing assistance receives it, and most are left to fend for themselves. Today, 10 million of the nation’s lowest-income renter households pay at least half of their income on rent, forcing them to make impossible tradeoffs between paying rent and putting healthy food on the table or making ends meet. Ongoing structural racism, discrimination, and segregation in our communities exacerbate the challenges, impacting health outcomes, educational attainment, and in some cases, life expectancy.

The Family Stability and Opportunity Vouchers Act:

- Creates an additional 250,000 housing vouchers over five years for low-income, high-need families with young children under the age of 6. Households qualify for these new vouchers if they have a history of homelessness or housing instability, live in an area of concentrated poverty, or are at risk of being pushed out of a well-resourced area.
- Provides households with customized counseling and mobility-related services to help families move to neighborhoods of their choice, including areas with high-performing schools and/or high-quality childcare and early education programs.
- Enables housing agencies to engage new landlords in the voucher program and connect families with information about housing in a variety of neighborhoods and community-based supports during the moving process.
